

Air Force Research Laboratory|AFRL

Science and Technology for Tomorrow's Air and Space Force

Success Story

DR. LYLE H. SCHWARTZ RECEIVES HONORARY MEMBERSHIP TO ASM INTERNATIONAL

The American Society for Metals, commonly referred to as ASM International, is the society for materials engineering and scientists, which boasts nearly 40,000 members from 100 countries and selects just one honorary member each year. Honorary membership in ASM International recognizes distinguished service to the materials science and engineering profession, to ASM International, and to the progress of mankind. Honorary membership is among the most prestigious awards of the society.

Air Force Research Laboratory
Wright-Patterson AFB OH

Accomplishment

ASM International selected Dr. Lyle H. Schwartz, the director of the Air Force Office of Scientific Research (AFOSR), for Honorary Membership to ASM International. ASM recognized Dr. Schwartz for his innovative and effective leadership in planning, prioritizing, and administering materials research and development within the federal government and industrial/government partnerships. The society also honored Dr. Schwartz for his outstanding work in X-ray and neutron diffraction, Mossbauer spectroscopy, and for his service to ASM International.

Background

As AFOSR's director, Dr. Schwartz leads a staff of more than 150 scientists, engineers, and support people in Arlington, Virginia, and two foreign technology offices in London and Tokyo. Dr. Schwartz, who received his doctorate of philosophy in materials science from Northwestern University, helps AFRL maintain the technological superiority of the Air Force.

Office of Scientific Research
Awards and Recognition

Additional information

To receive more information about this or other activities in the Air Force Research Laboratory, contact TECH CONNECT, AFRL/XPTC, (800) 203-6451 and you will be directed to the appropriate laboratory expert. (03-OSR-14)